

A World

A manifesto by Andrea Bozic & Julia Willms | Tilt

A world with no schools.

A world with no jobs.

A world with no old people's homes.

A world with no graveyards.

A world with no time.

A world with no holidays.

A world with no money.

A world with no winners.

A world with no gender.

A world with no heroes.

A world with no religion.

A world with no TV.

A world with no democracy.

A world with no groups.

A world with no countries.

A world with no cities.

A world with no families.

A world with no couples.

A world with no individuals.

A world with no schools.
A world with no teachers. A world with no pupils. A world with no skills.

A world with no jobs.
A world with no factories. A world with no companies. A world with no hobbies.

A world with no old people's homes.
A world with no outcasts.

A world with no graveyards.
A world with no monuments to the past. A world with no monuments to the present.

A world with no time.
A world with no clocks. A world with no time to waste.

A world with no holidays.
A world with no jobs.

A world with no money.
A world with no income. A world with no outcome.

A world with no winners.
A world with no losers. A world with no games.

A world with no gender.
A world with no men. A world with no women.

A world with no heroes.
A world with no leaders. A world with no followers.

A world with no religion.
A world with no gods. A world with no saints. A world with no belief.

A world with no TV.
A world with no entertainment. A world with no consumers.

A world with no democracy.
A world with no majority. A world with no minority. A world with no representatives.

A world with no groups.
A world with no insiders. A world with no outsiders.

A world with no countries.
A world with no borders. A world with no identity.

A world with no cities.
A world with no centre. A world with no periphery.

A world with no families.
A world with no tradition. A world with no heritage. A world with no hierarchy.

A world with no couples.
A world with no roles. A world with no unification.

A world with no individuals.
A world with no subjects. A world with no objects. A world with no separation.

A world with schools.

A world with jobs.

A world with old people's homes.

A world with graveyards.

A world with time.

A world with holidays.

A world with money.

A world with winners.

A world with gender.

A world with heroes.

A world with religion.

A world with TV.

A world with democracy.

A world with groups.

A world with countries.

A world with cities.

A world with families.

A world with couples.

A world with individuals.